Notice of benefactions

25 July 2011

The Vice-Chancellor gives notice that he has received with gratitude the following benefactions:

- (i) a benefaction of £70,000 to be paid over five years from the A. G. Leventis Foundation to support one Visiting Fellowship each year in the Centre of African Studies;
- (ii) a benefaction of £80,000, given under the Gift Aid Scheme, from Mr Brian Buckley, to be divided equally to support the Scott Polar Research Institute and the Greek Lexicon Project;
- (iii) a benefaction of £100,000 from Dr M. Ehrenberg for research support in the Department of Physics;
- (iv) a benefaction of £102,000 over five years under the Gift Aid Scheme from Mr R. C. Smithson to support a postgraduate studentship in the Faculty of Philosophy.

Election to the Chancellorship: Notice

25 July 2011

In order to vote in the election to the Chancellorship, members of the University (other than current members of the Regent House) must hold one of the following degrees, which qualify them for membership of the Senate: any Master's degree of the University, any doctoral degree of the University, or the degree of Bachelor of Divinity of the University.

To enable eligible members of the University who have not yet proceeded to an appropriate degree to do so in time for the vote, the Vice-Chancellor, with the approval of the Council and the Proctors, gives notice that the Congregation to be held on Saturday, 1 October 2011 – that is, the annual Congregation for the election and admission of the Proctors – will exceptionally also be available to those members of the University to take degrees, in absentia only. Any such persons should contact their Colleges as soon as possible to arrange for their names to be put forward.

A holder of the B.A. Degree is eligible to proceed to the M.A. Degree if six years at least have passed since the person's first term of residence and if more than two years have elapsed since being admitted to the B.A. Degree (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 432). This means that any person who was admitted to the B.A. Degree before 1

October 2009 and who came into residence at the beginning of the Easter Term 2005 or at any time before then will be eligible to proceed to the M.A. Degree on 1 October 2011.

Offices of Pro-Vice-Chancellor: Notice

18 July 2011

The Council gives notice that, after consultation with the General Board, and on the recommendation of the Nominating Committee for the appointment and reappointment of Pro-Vice-Chancellors (comprising the Vice-Chancellor as Chairman; Professor Frank Kelly, Dr David Good, Dr Rachael Padman (members of the Council), and Professor Simon Franklin and Professor Howard Chase (members of the General Board)), it has appointed Professor Jeremy Sanders, SE, as Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Institutional Affairs) for three years from 1 October 2011 and has reappointed Professor John Rallison, T, as Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education) for three years from 1 October 2011.

The University's linked charities: Notice

18 July 2011

The Charities Act 2006 provides that all charities should be subject to regulation. Although all charities have always been subject to general charity law, the University, as an exempt charity, was previously outside the scope of the Charity Commission's regulatory powers or the requirement to register as a charity.

HEFCE became the principal regulator of those higher education institutions (HEIs) in England that are exempt charities with effect from 1 June 2010. HEIs are also now subject to the Charity Commission's investigation and enforcement powers, although the Commission must consult with HEFCE before they are exercised. As principal regulator, HEFCE must, in this respect, do all it reasonably can to meet the 'compliance objective' in relation to exempt charity HEIs. The 'compliance objective' is: 'to promote compliance by charity trustees with their legal obligations in exercising control and management of the administration of the charity'.

Certain charities linked with an exempt charity may themselves be exempt from the requirement to register if they come within the terms of the Charities Act 1993, Schedule 2, paragraph (w): 'any institution which is administered by or on behalf of an institution included above and is established for the general purposes of, or for any special purpose of or in connection with, that institution'. The affairs of such linked charities must be of 'direct concern' to the exempt charity's own trustees.

As principal regulator of exempt charity HEIs, HEFCE will regulate such linked charities through its engagement with the HEI. HEFCE requires that information about individual linked charities is disclosed in the HEI's financial statements from 2010–11 onwards.

The Council has considered the charities which it regards as linked with the University for this purpose. Firstly, there are certain separately constituted charities which are consolidated in the University's financial statements as subsidiary undertakings by virtue of having the majority of the charity's trustees appointed by the University. There are other charities which are not considered subsidiary undertakings but are still regarded as qualifying under 'paragraph (w)'.

Attached as a Schedule is the list of charities regarded as linked, and therefore subject, to HEFCE as their principal regulator. Trustees of charities not included in the Schedule, but who consider that their charity falls into the category of linked charities under 'paragraph (w)' (that is, administered by or on behalf of the University, and established for its general or special purposes) should advise the Registry in writing by 30 September 2011.

SCHEDULE

Consolidated in the University's financial statements:

- Cambridge Overseas Trust
- Cambridge Commonwealth Trust
- Gates Cambridge Trust
- Cambridge European Trust
- Malaysian Commonwealth Studies Centre in Cambridge
- The Cambridge Foundation
- Oxford, Cambridge and RSA Examinations
- Strangeways Research Laboratory

Other unregistered linked charities administered by or on behalf of the University, and established for its general or special purposes:

- Isaac Newton Trust
- Kurt Hahn Scholarship Trust
- University of Cambridge Veterinary School Trust

ACTA

Grace 3 of 15 June 2011: result of ballot

25 July 2011

A postal ballot was held between 14 July and 25 July 2011 on the following Grace of the Regent House:

3. That, in the light of sweeping cuts to the HE budget, the trebling of tuition fees, and incoherent access policies, all decided on without adequate consultation, the University shall communicate to HM Government, by June 24, 2011 or as soon as possible thereafter, that it has no confidence in the policies of the Minister of State for Universities and Science, and that this duty be delegated to the Council.

The results of the voting on this Grace are as follows:

In favour of the Grace (placet)	681
Against the Grace (non placet)	681

Under the regulations for Graces if there is an equality of votes the Grace is deemed not to be approved (Regulation 14, Statutes and Ordinances, p. 109).

This Grace is therefore not approved.

The following fly-sheets, etc., are reprinted in accordance with the Council's Notice on Discussions and Fly-sheets (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 112).

Grace 3 of 15 June 2011: Fly-sheet

The appropriate way for the University to comment on the higher education (HE) policies of the Government is to respond to the imminent HE White Paper through the consultative mechanism. At the time of writing, the White Paper is expected either shortly before or after the vote on this Grace and we therefore ask you to vote non placet.

Grace 3 of 15 June 2011: Fly-sheet

It is not contradictory to oppose “sweeping cuts to the HE budget, the trebling of tuition fees, and incoherent access policies, all decided on without adequate consultation”, but still to vote against this partisan, political and divisive Grace.

The Grace attempts to summarise the wide range of opinions within the Regent House, on a complicated issue, in a single statement criticising a single individual. It attempts to recruit Cambridge's reputation and standing to a cause outside our institutional competence. It is framed to conceal and suppress the legitimately held opinions of those Regents who disagree with it. The Grace will not bring down the Government. It will however confirm to many in the public that Cambridge academics are out of touch with financial reality, and that we are indulging in gesture politics when we should be working to protect excellence and access. The substance of this Grace is better suited to the Union debating chamber.

In March of this year, 681 Oxford and Cambridge academics exercised their right of free speech to express no confidence in the policies of the Government, and wrote to Mr Willetts, opposing the cuts. They wrote as individuals, and did not claim, as they could not, to speak for those who had not signed. That was both appropriate and effective. The corporate University on the other hand cannot have or express confidence in anyone, but can nonetheless comment on the policies of the Government via its response to the White Paper, which is expected shortly. Regents can help shape that response via the consultative mechanism.

The initiated Grace mechanism was not designed to be used in this way, and those now in favour might do well to consider their reaction to a future vote in which they were in the minority. A vote against this Grace is not a vote in favour of the Government, and we therefore urge you to vote non placet.

PLACET vote of No Confidence

We, the undersigned, call on members of the Regent House to vote Placet in this historic vote. We note that there is a national No Confidence campaign underway, and that our colleagues in Oxford have already passed a Resolution in Congregation expressing no confidence in the Minister for Universities and Science, thereby sending a clear and unambiguous message to the government and to the public that it is our view that the nation's Higher Education system is being endangered in untenable ways by a precipitate policy, whose fundamental principle was imposed without due consultation or democratic debate. It is our responsibility as one of the nation's flagship universities to express our disquiet as well.

There is no evidence that the imposed policy of radically withdrawing public funding from the nation's HE sector to promote a student choice market will either improve students' university education or enhance social mobility. Nor, given the huge costs of the loans and the fact that so much of the debt will never be repaid, can it seriously be expected to improve the nation's finances over the long term. It amounts to little more than a reckless experiment, which was forced through Parliament without prior consultation or debate on December 9th 2010. While its precise impact on this university and others is entirely uncertain, what is quite beyond doubt is that it will saddle a future generation of today's young people with long-lasting burdens of debt and will deter some able students from applying at all, while running the distinct risk that it will undermine our ability to maintain the international excellence of our universities and their capacity to attract the most talented individuals from UK or abroad.

Grace of no confidence: why you should vote PLACET

The coalition government has withdrawn public funding for the teaching of humanities and social sciences, and has greatly reduced the funding for teaching in STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) subjects. It has replaced that funding with student fees, creating a market in which the money given to particular universities and subjects follows the student. Many subjects, and particularly those that are not perceived as direct routes to a well-paid job, will become unviable under this new regime, and the relationship between student and teacher will be recast across the board as a relationship between consumer and provider. Far from helping the economy, the cuts will produce a £100M-per-year funding gap, which will be closed by cutting the number of places available at UK Universities. (The declared aim of the changes is to increase that number.)

The government has raised the ceiling for tuition fees from £3,290 to £9,000. These fees do not take into account maintenance costs, which are likely to begin at around £6,000 per year. Students on three-year degree courses will therefore graduate with a minimum debt of £45,000. Longer courses, and those which involve years abroad (during which students will be charged 50% of the annual tuition fee) will create much heavier debts, and may become unviable. These debts will be inflated over time by interest charged at commercial rates (RPI+3%). Funding for postgraduate study will continue to shrink, so that only students from wealthy backgrounds or those with external sponsorship will be able to contemplate it. This will have negative consequences both for universities as research institutions and for the future of the academic profession. With over two-thirds of universities ignoring the government's instructions and charging the top rate, the £9,000 cap is unlikely to hold for long. The foundation of the profit-making New College of the Humanities, charging £18,000 per year for its courses, shows what the future will hold if current policies are not reversed.

While the new fee structure is likely to deter less wealthy students from entering into higher education, the government has continued to berate Oxford and Cambridge for their 'elitist' admissions policies. It has refused to acknowledge that the roots of current social inequities lie in primary and secondary education and to address the problem at its source. The fees will create a sharply stratified student body, dividing those who pay up-front (note that this will be possible) from those accruing lifelong debts and those who are in receipt of charitable handouts. The very complexity of the new system, with patterns of bursaries and fee-waivers that will vary from institution to institution and from year to year, places yet another obstacle in the way of students from poorer families.

What's more, this radical restructuring has been rushed through, without due care and attention to much of the necessary fine detail. Even though a White Paper is now imminent (damagingly reversing the traditional order of consultation, then implementation), universities have already had to decide on the level of undergraduate fees and make corresponding medium-term financial decisions. At best the White Paper may mitigate some of the worst effects of already implemented policy; more likely it will introduce additional elements of uncertainty as the government fiercely try to appease public sympathies and reduce the extra financial burden the new funding system has placed on the public purse.

The current Minister of State for Universities is officially responsible for the ill-considered policies of his government, but this vote is about policies, not personalities. We are called upon to respond to a crisis which has been caused by the inability of the governing classes to conceive the purposes of education in anything other than commercial terms. We cannot wait until the government makes higher education even less accessible to future generations than it already has. We cannot wait for the White Paper; the government has acted and so must we. We stand at a turning-point, at which it is vital that we defend the values that lie at the core of our enterprise. This Grace offers an historic opportunity for members of the University of Cambridge to join with our colleagues across the country in defending higher education as a public good. We urge you to vote Placet.

Vote Placet. Education is a public good.

A devastating assault is currently underway on universities in this country. This is much more than a matter of diminished resources. All public bodies are, in one way or another, facing such diminution. It is, instead, a matter of the very conception of what kind of institution universities are, and what the relation of government to them should be. The current administration understands universities, essentially, as auxiliaries to commerce. Its notion of higher education is that it is or should be a market; that students should be shoppers in this market; that scholars should be salesmen and saleswomen in it. Students have protested forcefully against this idea of what they are and should be. Yet from universities themselves, and from those who are presumed to represent them, there has been heard barely a peep of dissent. It is as though we were calmly to witness the simple removal of the teaching funding for certain subjects, the trebling of fees, and the corporatization of the entire sector, and, effectively, to say: 'Do what you like. We're too demoralized even to say that you shouldn't do this.'

There is, however, an alternative. Public respect for universities such as Cambridge is partly dependent on the public's perception that the scholars in those universities will say what they think, not what it is convenient or advantageous to them to say. Cambridge is in a position of particular responsibility in this regard because of its pre-eminence. By declaring, collectively, that education is a public good, not merely a financial asset, we can repay the public's trust in us and demonstrate that we continue to deserve it. For this reason we ask you to vote Placet to the current Grace.

Vote PLACET: Science is Vital

Although there has been considerable criticism of current government Higher Education policy, both within the University and nationally, much of this has focussed on the likely effect of this policy on the Arts and Humanities. Many of the voices raised in protest, especially within the University, have been from the Arts and Humanities. So an uninformed observer could be forgiven for thinking that the Sciences will be relatively unscathed by the sweeping changes now proposed. However, this is not so, as Professor Steve Young, Pro-Vice-Chancellor for Planning and Resources and Professor of Information Engineering, pointed out in a Discussion on 18 January 2011: “in my view the real threat is more likely to be to the sciences, where the rapidly reducing government grant will make it harder to justify a uniform fee to all Home undergraduates whilst continuing to provide high quality but costly laboratory-based teaching to those in science and technology” (Reporter, 2010–11, p. 450).

In its 27 April 2011 submission to the House of Commons Science & Technology Select Committee, the Campaign for Science & Engineering (CaSE) points out that although the Comprehensive Spending Review froze the Science Budget (in cash terms), capital expenditure on research was cut by 46% (£1.9bn), the impact of which “will be to reduce the UK’s capacity to invest in cutting-edge science and engineering projects by more than 50% (as well as seriously affecting ongoing research)”. As well as this, CaSE report that spending on programmes to address the gender imbalance and the under-representation of various groups (e.g. the disabled, students from comprehensive schools, etc.) in the STEM sector has been severely cut (by 100% in some instances). Furthermore “golden hellos” for new science and maths teachers are to be abolished, despite the UK’s severe shortage of teachers with the relevant background in physics, chemistry and maths (an estimated shortfall of 4,000 physics teachers alone). This is likely to reduce the number of children being properly educated in these subjects, and consequently to reduce the number of young people choosing to take these subjects at University, depriving us of the next generation of scientists.

Taken as a whole, it is clear that current government policy is not only not in the best interests of UK science, but also that it has not been thought out properly, and as a result has fallen foul of the law of unintended consequences. Not only can we not have any confidence in current policy delivering what is best for UK science, we cannot even be confident it will deliver what is necessary for UK science to remain internationally competitive. In 2010, the Science is Vital campaign showed that national protest from the general public and a united science sector could make a difference to government policy. This Grace is part of a national campaign (<http://www.noconfidence.org.uk/>) to get the government to re-think its Higher Education policy. Only together can we do this: therefore we ask all Regents, but particularly our colleagues in the STEM subjects, to vote Placet.

VOTE PLACET: THEY GOT IT WRONG

There are obviously a number of important issues around this Grace of no confidence in the government’s Higher Education policies. But however you weigh up the pros and cons of such an action, at its heart is a very simple question:

Do you think that, with its current HE policies, our government has gotten it wrong?

If your answer to this question is “yes” (or “on balance, yes”) then we urge you to VOTE PLACET.

Why this Higher Education Policy Must be Resisted

In the wake of the recent financial crisis, which left millions unemployed, uninsured and homeless, and ended in a massive transfer of funds from taxpayers to the corporate elite, which direction should public policy be taking? Should the realization that much of this was caused by our unflinching faith in the ‘free market’ bring us closer to the economic orthodoxy that lies at the heart of the Universities Minister’s education policy or prompt us to challenge it? If we learn one lesson from this disaster it should be that the economy must remain subservient to society. Decisions that affect society must be based on values that we hold dear and not on ‘efficiency’ considerations alone.

That this government should appoint a self-professed ‘free marketeer’ as Higher Education Minister when British society is still reeling from the damage done by this philosophy beggars belief. Shouldn’t the universities be advising the government against a dogmatic adherence to the mythical powers of the free market? Instead, we have the Higher Education minister opening doors for market forces to take over education and subsequently, British society. A three-fold rise in tuition fees, plans to sell off university seats to the highest bidders, corporate sponsoring for universities – all this in the complete absence of any pre-announced electoral mandate of this kind! That all this is being carried out in the name of social mobility is a further affront to our intelligence. What is next? Building of multi million-pound homes to solve the problem of homelessness?

Educating young minds is a social mission. We seek to deal with each students’ needs individually, seeing in her or him a future citizen. Preparing students to have independent minds and a concern for society requires cultivating a particular ethos in them. The current education policy is undermining that mission.

We must reject the erroneous assumption that the country can no longer afford to fund education, even as the taxpayer is being made to fund expensive wars being fought to preserve the interests of a few. We must stand up and deal a resounding blow to the ideology that this Higher Education minister represents.

Vote ‘Placet’.

Grace 3 of 15 June 2011: Fly-sheet

As the principal placet flysheet notes, the Grace boils down to: Do you think that, with its current HE policies, our government has gotten it wrong? It would be surprising if Regents disagreed. But the initiated Grace mechanism was not intended as a way of ascertaining the vox pop. on matters unconnected with University governance.

A second placet flysheet, by Professor Simon Jarvis, asks us collectively to say that we believe education to be a public good. Indeed, the University has done so, in the Council statement of 8th December, twice since reiterated. But nothing of this is implicit in the Grace either as worded or as summarised above.

There are many good points in the placet flysheets pointing out the consequences of the government’s actions. This is not the way to make them. A lazy and jejune vote of no confidence does nothing to get these arguments a wider hearing. The Grace’s promoters could have used the opportunity to affirm the University’s stated values. They have chosen instead to make an empty political gesture.

We urge you to vote non placet.

VOTE PLACET: THE GOVERNMENT NEEDS TO RECONSIDER ITS EDUCATION POLICY.

The University of Oxford’s no confidence motion has received widespread publicity, making it absolutely clear that Oxford academics are overwhelmingly against the government’s education policies. The press coverage has been so positive and so widespread that a national campaign is being coordinated to encourage as many other Higher Education institutions as possible to follow this lead. This is being supported by the University and College Union (UCU), both nationally and by the Cambridge Local Association.

In the past year the coalition government has shown a pattern of attempting to impose half-baked ideological ideas with minimal dialogue. We have also seen that, with coordinated campaigns, they can be forced to reconsider or back down, as with the proposed privatisation of woodlands and NHS market proposals. A clear statement that those people who are most knowledgeable about these issues, such as the doctors and nurses working in the NHS, consider that the government's proposals are misguided has been crucial in bringing about these rethinks. It is therefore vital that university employees also voice their disapproval of the government's HE policies.

For this reason we urge you to vote Placet to the current Grace.

COLLEGE NOTICES

Memorial services

Gonville and Caius College: Following a private cremation, a Service of Thanksgiving for Dr W. J. Macpherson (see p. 1116) will be held in the Chapel of Gonville and Caius College at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, 3 August 2011. All are welcome.

Vacancies

College Research Fellowships 2012–13

The Office of Intercollegiate Services announces that a number of Colleges propose to hold competitions for Research Fellowships tenable from the start of the academic year 2012–13 with closing dates for application on or near 1 October 2011. For reasons of compliance with the Points Based Immigration System in the cases of successful candidates who require immigration clearance to work in the UK, advertisements are likely to be issued towards the end of August (and not later than 31 August 2011). They will appear on the University of Cambridge website at <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/hr/jobs/colleges.cgi>, as well as on individual College websites and elsewhere.

College advertisements for competitions with a later closing date will normally appear in the Cambridge University Reporter and the Oxford Gazette, as well as on the University of Cambridge website, College websites, and elsewhere, not less than 28 days before the closing date.

General information concerning individual research fellowships can be found on College websites.

Homerton College: Director of Music, 2011–12, with possibility of renewal; salary: £24,000–£28,000 pro rata; closing date: 4 August 2011; further particulars: <http://www.homerton.cam.ac.uk/> or pb29@cam.ac.uk

Queens' College: Junior Research Fellowships in Physics, and East Asian History, to commence on 1 October 2012; stipend up to £20,445 plus benefits; closing date: noon, 9 September 2011; further particulars: <http://www.queens.cam.ac.uk/general-information/vacancies>
